

Got Belly Rubs?

Yeah, I'm a houseful, alright. I'm a hundred forty pounds of snugglepup. Yeah! The name's Jag. I'm 15 months old now and I'm already too big for some houses. My original family loved me to pieces, but due to their schedule, I didn't get a lot of time socializing with other animals. I spent a lot of time in my crate and so I don't know how to properly interact with dogs or cats or small, frail people. I got adopted once, but I didn't like the other dogs at that home, and I wasn't respectful of the Missus. So I'm in foster care now, learning how to be a good boy. I've been getting lots of training in my foster home, but I still have lots to learn. My foster-Mama says I am a sweet boy, but I'm mouthy and pushy. I don't mean to be a clumsy oaf; it's just that my body's so darn big, it takes a long time for my brain to get messages to my feet, y'know? And when I wanna play, I wanna play hard!

I'm a purebred Blue Cane Corso, with natural ears and a handsome docked tail that makes my whole butt wiggle when it wags. I'm neutered, up to date on shots, housebroken, and microchipped. I like carrying sticks around the yard and taking walks around town so I can greet people and give them my big sloppy kisses. And I LOVE belly rubs! I like kids a lot, but I haven't yet learned how to control my affection enough around them. I chew on their feet and slobber on them and knock them over, and that scares them and makes them run away. I suppose you could say I'm just a puppy in a dinosaur's body.

I think what I need is a place to live where there's room for a big guy like me to really stretch out and exercise. I'd love to be able to have someone to party with during the day so I'm not so lonely all the time. A sensitive guy like me with such a loving nature could be a really nice pal, y'know? And who would make a better guardian than this big hunk of dog?

If you've got extra room and an empty lap that can hold a dinosaur, would you give me a call?

I'll come runnin'! 518-727-8591 PLEASE, no small children or other pets.